The Baby Birds

Simon's house had a big garden.
There were several trees in the garden. It was spring when Simon saw the nest.

Simon looked out of his bedroom window. He saw a thrush with a worm in its beak. It flew to a tree. He thought there might be a nest.

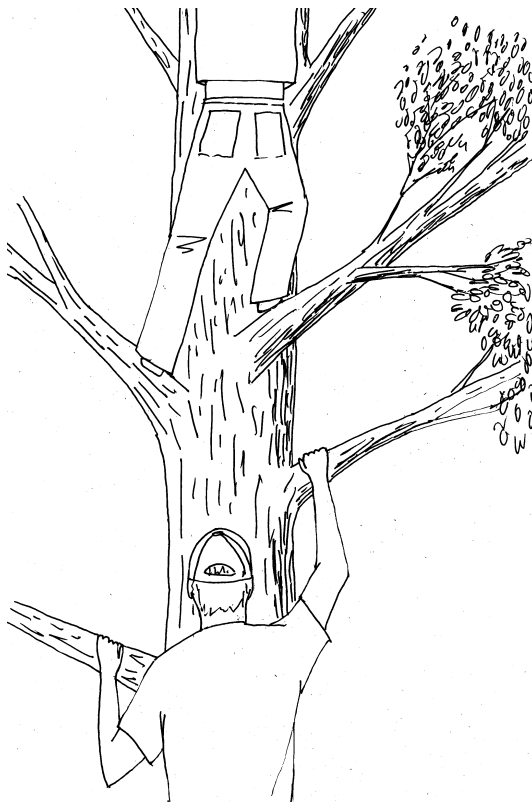

The next day, Simon told Brian about the thrush. Brian said, "You could be right. Let's have a look." Simon agreed, "Yes, but we must be careful."

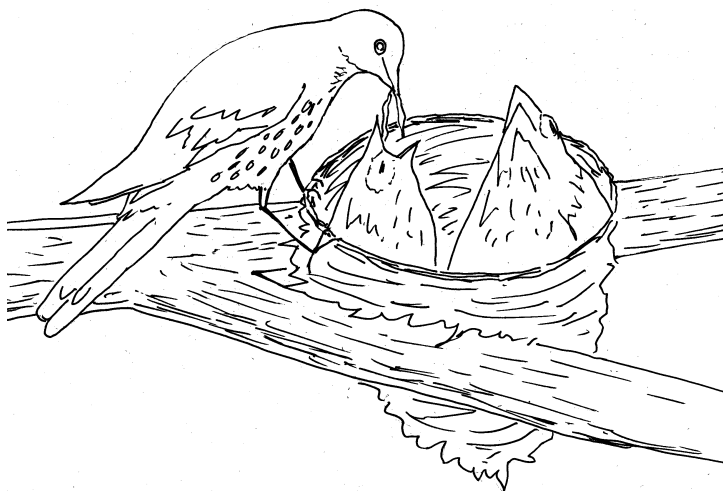

They climbed up the tree. Yes!
There was a nest and there were two baby birds! Their eyes were shut. The boys were thrilled.

From the tree, Simon and Brian saw the mother thrush flying into the garden. So they climbed down quickly.

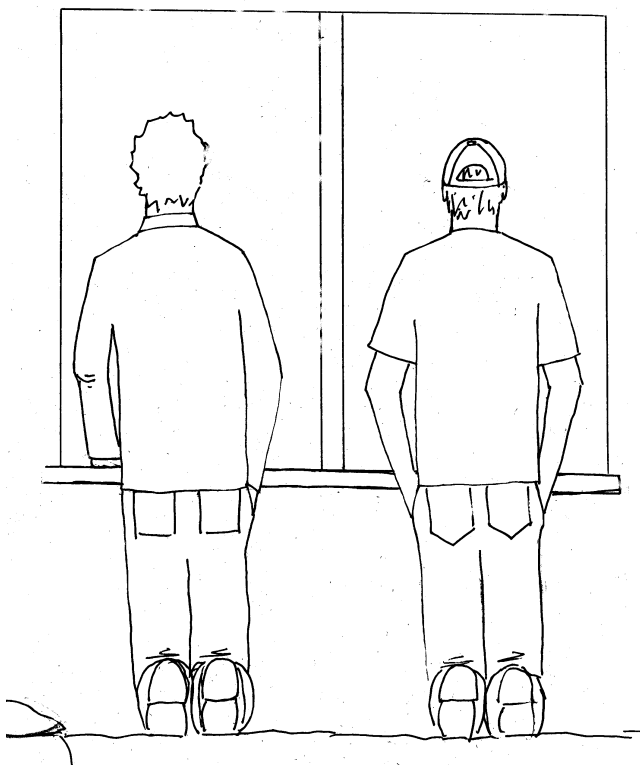

The thrush had a worm in its beak again. It seemed the baby birds were hungry. The mother flew onto the nest and fed the babies.

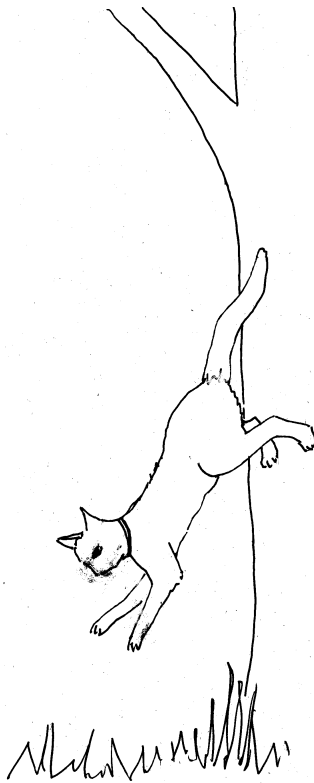

Every day of the week, Simon looked out into the garden. He often saw the mother thrush. Sometimes it had worms in its beak and sometimes insects.

Brian came to visit Simon. He asked about the baby birds. They went to Simon's bedroom to look through the window.

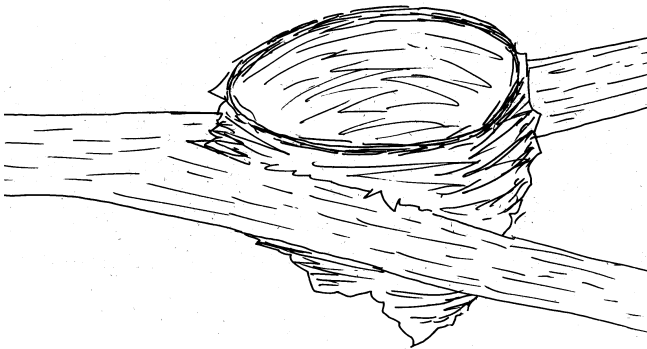

They were waiting to see the mother thrush. Suddenly they saw a cat jumping out of the same tree. Brian and Simon looked at each other in dismay.

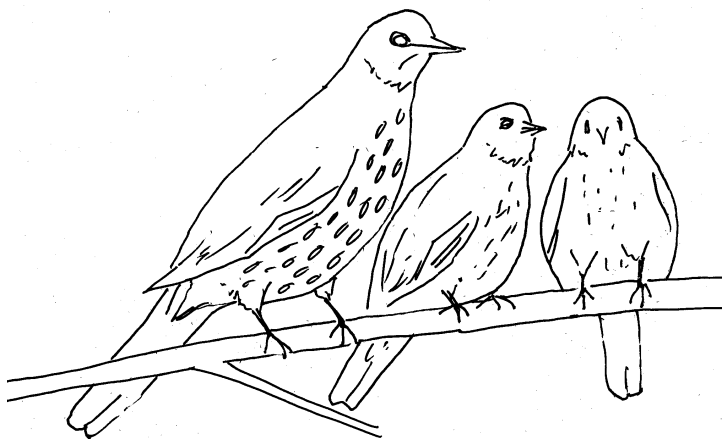

They rushed out and quickly climbed up the tree. They saw the nest and it was empty. Brian said, "The cat must have taken the babies."

Simon said, "Yes, oh damn!"

They climbed down. They were sad. They heard something and they looked up. And what did they see? The mother thrush and the two baby birds sitting on a branch! The babies had flown the nest!
