Simon was on the telephone. He was talking to Brian. It was about Mother's Day on Sunday.

Simon said, "Can we meet in town this afternoon?"

Brian said, "Yes, I can. Why in town?"

Simon answered, "I want to buy flowers for Mum for Mother's Day."

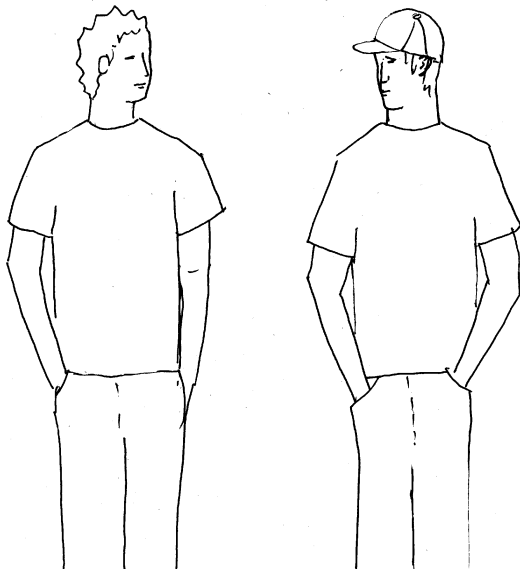

Simon went on the bike. Brian came on the bus because he lived a long way from town.

They met outside WH Smith.
There were lots of people in town.

Simon said, "I have £1.50 for the flowers."

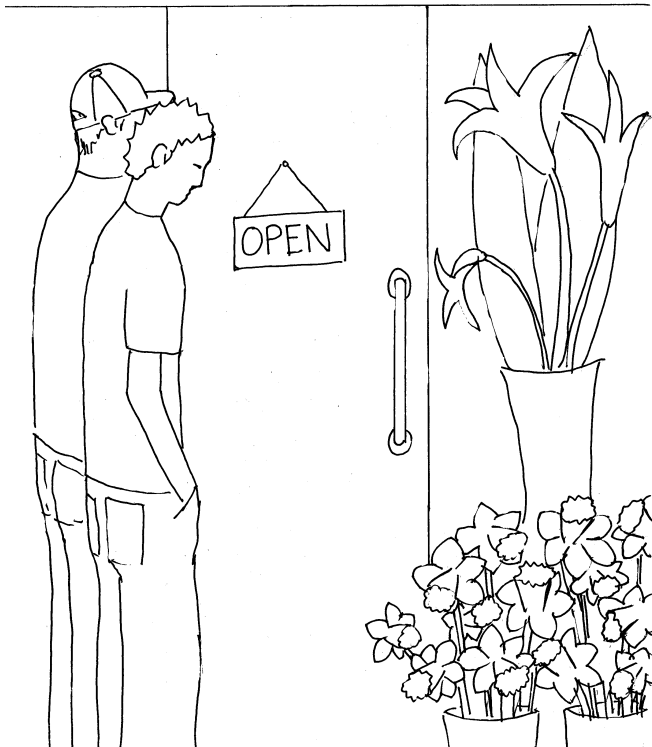

Brian remarked, "I don't think £1.50 is enough."

Simon said, "Really? Oh, dear, let's have a look."

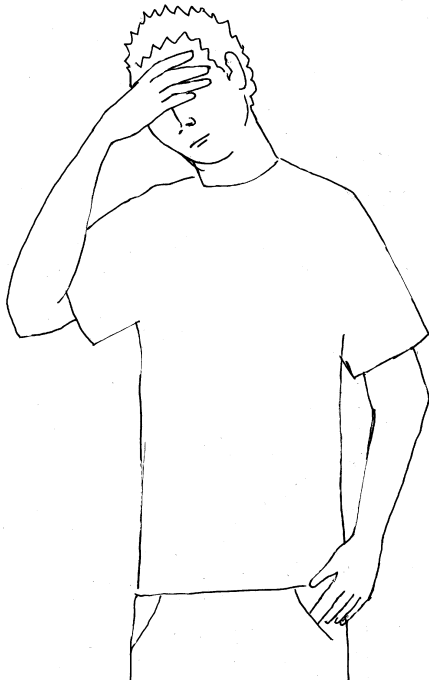

They visited several flower shops and Brian was right. The flowers were expensive. Simon was fed up.

Simon said, "Brian, you are right. The £1.50 is not really enough." Brian said, "Never mind. You could ask your father for more money, eh?" Simon nodded and sighed.

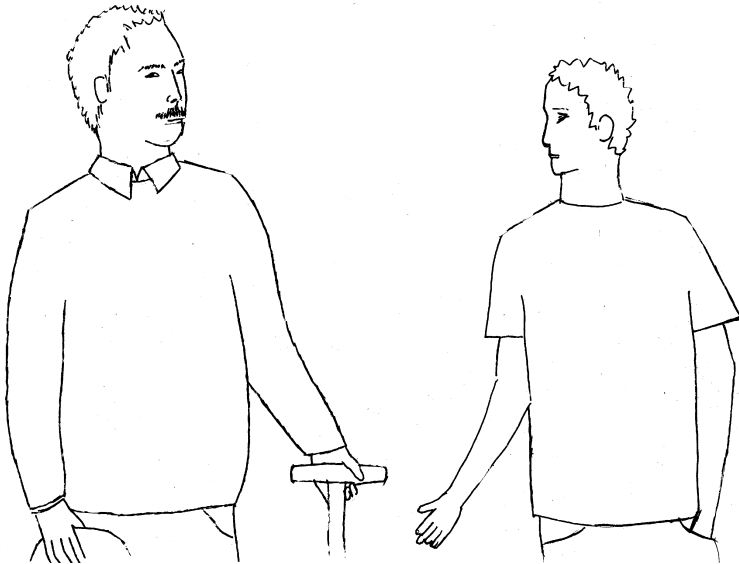

Simon went back home on his bike.
Brian caught the bus home

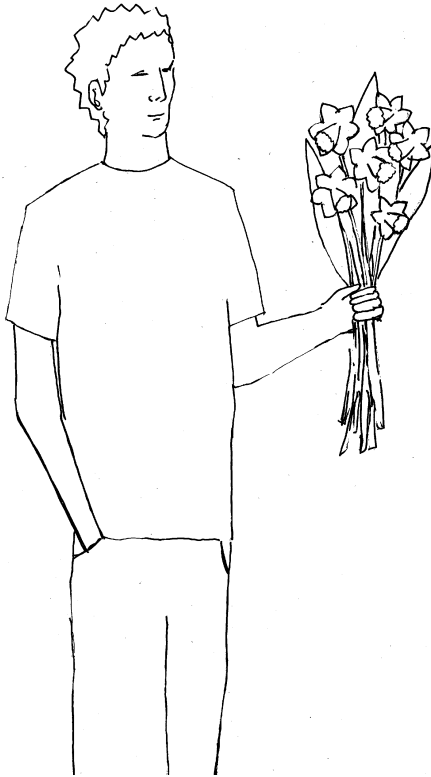

Simon arrived home. In the front garden there were daffodils. His eyes sparkled. His Dad was working in the garden.

Simon shouted, "Dad, can I buy these daffodils for Mum for Mother's Day?" His Dad rubbed his chin.

Dad nodded and said, "That will be 50p. I will cut them for you."
Simon was pleased that he had got some flowers for his Mum!
